Don't Let Termites Eat Into Your Property's Value

Protect your home from damaging termite infestations - add Sentricon® subterranean termite control to your Select Plan and SAVE 8% on all HomeTeam services you have.

SAVE 8% GET 8% OFF

A Hidden Threat to Homeowners Everywhere

- Subterranean termite colonies can compromise the structural integrity of your property and deter potential buyers.
- Termites cause $5 billion in property damage yearly and homeowners' insurance does not always cover this damage.
- Professional subterranean termite control helps safeguard your home and avoids costly potential repairs.
- Taking a proactive approach is the smartest way to protect your investment and keep its value intact.

SAVE 8% on all HomeTeam services when you add Sentricon termite control to your current plan.

Tips for a Stress-Free Holiday Season

- 1 Tidy up - organize your closets and storage spaces and put away all the items you don't use. Consider donating items you don't need anymore.
- 2 Shop in advance - avoid the last-minute shopping rush by planning your shopping trips well before the 25th of December.
- 3 Get festive - ensure that your home is party-ready with beautiful decorations like fairy lights, winter foliage, and paper garlands.
- 4 Pay attention to detail - add extra cheer with themed soaps or hand towels in your bathroom. If you have out-of-town guests visiting, welcome them with a bonbon or a small trinket placed on their pillow.
- 5 Outsource - call us and we'll take the hassle out of holiday cleaning.

BLACK HISTORY IN STEM

EXPLORE HOW CHARLES HENRY TURNER USED SCIENCE AS A TOOL FOR LIBERATION AND CHANGE.

This Black History Month, we celebrate Charles Henry Turner, the first Black entomologist. His research on honey bee memory, colorful bee vision, and insect behavior transformed how we see the world of insects, especially bees and ants.

Even more inspiring, he conducted much of his research after teaching high school science all day. His legacy reminds us of the vital contributions of scientists of color and inspires future generations to be curious. Click below to download a FREE CCSS-aligned activity introducing Dr. Turner to kids in grades K-5!

Five New Year's Resolutions

With 2025 less than a day away, you're probably making resolutions like exercising more and eating healthier - but those won't make you a better futures trader.

Take Me to MFFU

Five Ways We Help You Grow

- Always be an independent thinker
It can be tempting to copy someone else's trades, but only YOU know your level of experience and what you want to get out of trading futures.
- Never stop learning
Even the most experienced traders know that there's always room for improvement. Continue to hone your skills by learning from respected traders, reading up, and watching educational videos.
- Know when to pivot
Sometimes you may need to adjust your strategy if it isn't working. Although it's not easy to acknowledge, it can be necessary in order to progress.
- Manage your risk
Risk is inevitable in futures trading, which is why it's important to create a solid risk management strategy and have stop losses in place. It's also important to continually review your strategy.

Prep Like a Pro

Before you start making that avocado and garlic spread, follow the tips below to save your fingers from all kinds of misfortune. Step one, sharpen that knife...

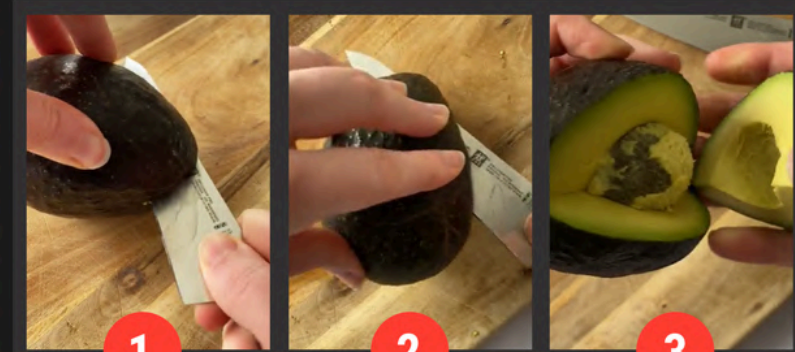

GET SHARP

TOP PREPPING TIPS

Cutting an Avocado

Here's how you cut an avocado safely and cleanly:

1. Place the avocado on a cutting board so it's lying down, place your hand in the center, and slice horizontally by moving the avocado (not your knife).
2. Rotate the avocado 90 degrees and do the same until you've separated it into four segments.
3. Remove each segment and throw away the pit.

Now you've saved your fingers while ensuring four, clean slices. Congrats! Scroll down to learn how to remove that garlic smell from your fingers.

Less Screen Time, Better Trading

No, really. The time you spend away from the markets is just as important as the hours you put in. Scroll down for simple ways to stay rested, keep a clear head, and make decisions that align with your trading strategy.

Start Trading, Stay Balanced

It's All About Finding Balance

Here's what you need to remember when timing your trades:

- Find a timeframe that suits your internal clock best, especially if you're a part-time trader. Jumping in when you have the most energy is less likely to leave you feeling drained.
- Always be ready - doing your research in advance and monitoring different futures will help you maximize the time you have without needing to put in extra hours.
- Don't overtrade - trying to squeeze too much into a short timeframe will leave you mentally exhausted and more likely to make mistakes.
- Consider your trading style - taking longer-term positions can allow you more time to make decisions (which is ideal if you're not trading full-time) as opposed to short-term positions which will require your attention throughout the day or week.
